

Starting August 1st, URMIC's APA Accredited Psychology Training Program –

Integrated Care Family Psychology Track -- will offer training opportunities in:

PEDIATRICS

These positions are available within the Division of Collaborative Care & Wellness, with primary clinical placement in the department of Pediatrics at Rochester General Pediatric Associates (RGPA). RGPA is an urban pediatric primary care practice that services children (0-21 years) with diverse cultural backgrounds (including a large Spanish speaking population), medical and behavioral needs.

Fellows also have an opportunity to provide more traditional outpatient care to families at Strong Family Therapy Services, located at the University of Rochester Medical Center. Fellows work predominately with families coping with comorbid medical problems as well as those with relationship difficulties.

Fellows in all positions can expect to receive specialized training in integrated care, and family and systems psychology, including medical family therapy. Fellows have the opportunity to:

- 1) Maintain a supervised clinical practice with emphasis on integrated primary care and family systems.
- 2) Be uniquely trained in the URMC Physician Communication Coaching model, and prepared to serve as consultants and educators to medical clinicians to enhance the patient-family-physician relationship.
- 3) Participate in coursework and professional seminars dedicated to expanding knowledge base and skill development for primary/specialty care psychology and medical family therapy principles.
- 4) Have supervised teaching and supervision and often partner with Fellowship faculty working on ongoing scholarly projects, clinical quality improvement, and research.

Our fellowship launches psychologists who are highly qualified for careers in patient care, teaching, and administration.

Competitive candidates have interests and/or experience with health psychology, chronic and acute illness, and systems theory.
